EARNS ORACLE EXCELLENCE AWARD

Olympia, WA, Nov. 20, 2007 —ImageSource today announced the recognition of an ImageSource implementation at Oracle® OpenWorld in San Francisco, California. ImageSource Customer Partner, the City of Kent, was awarded the 2007 Oracle Excellence Award on Tuesday evening, November 13th.

In a previous award ceremony held Sunday, November 11th, the ImageSource solution at Swedish Medical Center received an honorable mention for an Oracle North American Titan Award, in the category of Content Management Solution.

“Considering the number of qualified candidates, we are extremely honored that both the City of Kent and the Swedish Medical Center were recognized at Oracle OpenWorld,” said Terry Butler, Chief Solutions Officer of ImageSource. “By partnering with ImageSource, which integrates world-class software like Oracle Content Management, a component of Oracle Fusion Middleware, our Customer Partners have seen great returns.”

ImageSource Customer Partner, the City of Kent, received the Oracle Excellence Award, which recognizes organizations for their creative use and success in extending the business value of their Oracle Applications with Oracle Fusion Middleware as a result of Oracle’s “Applications Unlimited” program.

“This award represents the success the City of Kent has attained by working with ImageSource and Oracle Content Management,” said James McKenney, Senior System Analyst for the City of Kent. “By establishing a reliable document management repository, easily accessible by city staff across multiple platforms, the City of Kent has increased its capacity for growth and has improved overall business operations.”

The ImageSource solution at the City of Kent delivers exceptional business value by optimizing the accessibility to documents across all city departments. Utilizing Oracle Imaging and Process Management, the solution is able to manage the taxonomy and disposition of records to comply with city records management policies. The platform provides seamless image retrieval of accounts payable invoices from the City of Kent’s JD Edwards accounting system.

Thomas Kurian, Senior Vice President, Oracle Server Technologies, announced in an Oracle press release “The caliber of the nominees was quite remarkable and demonstrates the success organizations are having as a result of their use of Oracle

Applications with Oracle Fusion Middleware. We are pleased to recognize the recipients for their success in driving business value with their IT investments and also want to congratulate all of the Oracle partners who have helped our customers with these successful implementations."

A North American Titan Award in the category of Content Management Solution recognizes an outstanding solution that helps customers manage a variety of corporate content – including web content, images, records, documents, and other digital assets that span the enterprise. Earning honorable mention in this category, the ImageSource solution enabled Swedish Medical Center to integrate a content management system with the hospital's new Electronic Health Records (EHR) system. Oracle Imaging and Process Management now replaces paper files with an electronic content management system for portions of the medical records not be generated through the EHR.

Swedish Medical Center also utilized Oracle Universal Content Management to realize substantial efficiencies in the training of their workforce of 5,500 employees on the new EHR. The solution allows for collaboration and workflow for the creation of content, fully customized training manuals and immediate training material updates, resulting in substantial time savings.
