(OLYMPIA, WA, September 11, 2008) ImageSource, a leading provider of content management solutions, professional services and the host of Nexus 2008, announced today that the ECM solutions conference will offer healthcare educational units. The program has been approved for 11 continuing education units for use in fulfilling the continuing education requirements of the American Health Information Management Association (AHIMA).

“We are extremely pleased to add AHIMA Educational Units to the list of educational credits offered at Nexus 2008,” says Terry Sutherland, CEO, ImageSource. “The AHIMA Educational Units along with PMI Professional Development Units for project managers and ICRM CMP Maintenance Hours for records managers demonstrate the true educational value of attending this conference.”

AHIMA provides medical records professionals with educational resources and programs. To ensure that its members meet professional standards of excellence, AHIMA issues credentials in health information management, coding, and healthcare privacy and security. Members earn credentials through a combination of education and experience, and finally performance on national certification exams. Following their initial certification, AHIMA members must maintain their credentials through rigorous continuing education requirements. Certified health information management professionals attending the two day Nexus conference will now receive continuing education units.
