Unlock the valuable data inside COLD/ERM reports.

Organizations that keep mainframes and physical storage mediums as archives face barriers to utilizing the stored data. While Computer Output to Laser Disk (COLD) was once a space-saving solution, the format grows less accessible as the systems become harder to find and maintain. ILINX Advanced Report Management makes archival information actionable.

No more manual search and retrieve

Information from COLD reports is surfaced and moved to the cloud. Indexing during migration enables online search for users throughout your organization. Reclaim the hours it once took an IT professional to locate and retrieve data from a physical archive.

Structure data and output to workflow

ILINX Advanced Report Management pulls in print stream data, statements, invoices, and documents from sources such as email or fax to generate comprehensive reports. Reports can then be routed via workflow to executives, approvers, and/or partners.

Configurable and scalable

Recreate identical copies of original reports, or configure rules to define new and complex report types. ILINX Advanced Report Management pulls from every available data stream to quickly and accurately generate all the reports your organization requires.

Technical Highlights
